

No-show rate cut by more than half when patients are called the day before their appointments

WHAT THEY DO

The Ultrasound UBT at the Lakewood Medical Office in Colorado found that when staff members call and remind patients of their appointments, the likelihood of them not showing up is greatly reduced. No-shows impact patient access because when appointments are rescheduled, other patients wait longer.

